Function:
"Building Automation and Control Networks" (BACnet) is a data transfer protocol for building automation that simplifies communication between products from different manufacturers.
The PFC200 Controller (2nd generation) can be operated as a BACnet building controller and supports the B-BC device profile with all major BACnet objects and interoperability building blocks (BIBBs).
The device communicates via BACnet/IP and offers the functionality of a BACnet Client and BACnet Server.

To use BACnet/IP, it is necessary to equip the device with a license.

The BACnet network is configured using the WAGO BACnet Configurator and the Engineering Software.

Benefits:
- Use the device as a BACnet Building Controller (B-BC)
- Control and detect distributed I/O signals from
- WAGO BACnet/IP Couplers via BACnet Fieldbus Protocol
- Data exchange with other BACnet Devices as a BACnet Client or Server

Use:
The license is registered in WAGO Upload and loaded onto a device. No other installation steps are required.

Technical Data:
See "Protocol Implementation Conformance Statement" (PICS)

System requirements
Other required software	Minimum firmware version: Firmware (16)

Software data
Supported devices	PFC100 Controller; 2nd Generation PFC200 Controller; 2nd Generation Compact Controller 100
Supported fieldbuses	BACnet/IP; without limitation of the BACnet objects, but depends on the application used

Delivery

License type	License without limiting the BACnet objects - but depending on the application used
Delivery type	License certificate per email
License type (note)	The single license allows installation on one controller. One license per controller is required.
License type (note) (2)	An Internet connection to the PC that's equipped with CODESYS or the WAGOupload tool may be required for license activation.
License generation	DRM
